Star and Planet Name Maker

It has been said by some that the universe has a billion galaxies. Each galaxy is believed to house a billion stars. That is close to a billion, billion stars, many of them with planets of some kind.

Most celestial catalogues use a hard to remember designation system like PX9-32 etc. A name is easier to remember and this will help you to create some names for your planets and stars.

How to use

There are a lot of tables in this name maker, but they are grouped into three parts for easy use.

Something to bear in mind is that random generators can sometimes produce results that may seem odd or too weird to use, such as their nature. If this happens, don't be afraid to either re-roll the result you got or to pick something that you feel works. There is also nothing stopping you from adding your own entries instead.

Format

Generally, a planet name would follow the name of the star it orbited around, followed by something that indicated its position in the orbit order, such as Terra/Earth being Sol-3.

For Stars

1. Roll a d1000 and make a note of what prefix you get.
2. Roll a second d1000 and note down what suffix you get.
3. Combine the two to give you your star name

For Planets

1. Go through the steps listed for stars above, rolling for both prefix and suffix for the name
2. Roll on the End part d100 table. This is entirely optional and is not used if you just need a single planet name.

Using a d1000

A d1000 is much like a d100 only with a third d10 being used. In case you didn't know, you can roll a d100 with two standard d10s, or 10 sided dice. Technically, you can do it with just one if desired.

You roll one d10 for the "hundreds", another d10 for the "tens" and the last one for the "single" digits. Reading this in order gives you a number between 001 and 000, with 000 = one thousand.

Example Name Creation

Star Name

1. Prefix roll – 006 - Abi
2. Suffix roll – 744 - sis
3. Combined - Abisis

Planet Designation

Deciding to use the star name from above we need to make a d100 roll for the end part.

Rolling a d100 we get the result of 14 - Beta.

Combining that with the result of the star name we get – Abisis Beta, the second planet of the Abisis system.

There are 100 pre-made planet name examples at the end of this publication, made with using the system above. To use as star names, ignore the end part for each entry.
